COURT FORWARDS MOONEY, BILLING DECISION

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

Now that the political campaign is tightening up, one can expect to see the first free cigars.

* * * *

And, again, on the other hand, one never knows, does one?

* * * *

Many visitors in Richmond often exclaim: "It's a beautiful place, but how do you stand the wind?"

* * * *

We're not proud — we'll admit that it is windy. But what a blessed relief this cool wind from the bay is when one returns from an auto trip to the interior.

* * * *

The clean, sweet smell of salt air and the wind blowing upon one's cheek wipes completely away the memory of hot days and nights.

* * * *

According to the department of census, the birth rate in Richmond showed a slight decrease for the fisual year of 1929-1930.

* * * *

According to city health officials this is not unusual as the entire state of California showed a marked decrease in birth rates.

* * * *

Tomorrow is the glorious Fourth — the anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

* * * *

There will be no special services in Richmond. It will be quiet.

* * * *

But, in spite of the fact that Fire Chief Cooper and other officials of the city have announced that fireworks will be prohibited in the city, they are being smuggled in from El Cerrito and other cities.

* * * *

A few days ago a small boy was badly burned when the firecracker he was holding in his hand exploded and caught his clothes afire.

* * * *

This same accident will be repeated all over the country —a thousand times or more— tomorrow unless due caution is maintained.

* * * *

Fireworks are dangerous playthings. So, fathers, think twice before you let little John and Mary have them.

* * * *

Which all reminds us of that old, bearded, senile Fourth of July joke about the Scotsman — which is repeated and repeated and repeated.

* * * *

You know it don't you? About the Scotchman who went around on the Fourth of July clapping his hands together to make loud noises and to save the expense of fireworks.

* * * *

If you don't know it — we absolutely refuse to tell you about it.

FULL PARDON FOR MEN SEEN

SAN FRANCISCO, July 2.—UP—As Tom Mooney and Warren Billings filed in tonight to eat their felon's meals in two different prisons, the message that may mean freedom for them both was speeding south to Gov. C. C. Young.

Completing more than seven months of deliberation, the state supreme court, sitting as a board of review, made its report late today in which it recommends or refuses pardon for Billings. If the recommendation is favorable, it is a foregone conclusion that Governor Young will pardon both Billings and Mooney.

Billings at Folsom. Mooney at San Quentin, the pair have served 14 years of life sentences, following their conviction on charges of murder after the Preparedness Day bombing of July 22, 1916, at San Francisco when nine persons lost their lives and 40 were wounded.

The report, together with the Billings transcripts, was mailed to the governor at Los Angeles. It was expected to reach him tomorrow morning.

Though the court would give no indication as to the nature of their findings, its public statement did not deny or affirm persistent printed reports that the decision would not be favorable.

Billings' case alone was considered, under California law which orders that the supreme court must first review all pardon term applications from two-time felons—Billings served a previous term for the unlawful possession of dyna-

CHEYENNE, Wyo., July 2.—UP—Twenty-eight defendants in the Rock Springs liquor conspiracy case, including several city officials, were acquitted by a jury in federal district court here late today.

The trial lasted eight days.

Fifty-two persons were indicted originally in the alleged conspiracy, but charges against 21, including Mayor P. C. Bunning, City Treasurer Ralph Harns, Magistrate E. E. Johnson and Chief of Police James Harris were dismissed by Judge T. Blake Kennedy.

The government charged the dedendants had a working agreement with city officials whereby they were given protection thru the payment of license fees and fines without formal arrest.

Chinese Held For Selling Fireworks

Chow Ming, an ambitious Chinaman of Oakland, who believes the Fourth of July should be celebrated in a loud and vociferous manner is disgusted.

Chow Ming is of the race that features loud and large firecrackers, and because of his attempting to sell them in El Cerrito he spent Tuesday night in the El Cerrito city jail.

Ming was arrested by Officer Floyd Gilbert, who reported that Ming was selling firecrackers that were practically miniature hand grenades, and did everything but blow holes in the pavement when exploded.

Ming, when asked to produce his license, is said to have told officers he did not know such a thing existed, so he went to jail. He was released on receipt of $100 bail yesterday morning.

RANCH HAND "TALKS" IN DEATH PROBE

REDWOOD CITY, July 2.—UP—An announcement of importance in solving the Roderick murder case was expected early tomorrow from the district attorney's office.

Assistant District Attorneys Edmund Scott and Richard O. Bell were closeted with William Woodring, former employe on Roderick's ranch today, after Woodring had stated that he 'wanted to talk."

He was to have been arraigned on a charge of first degree murder today while two others, Mrs. Minnie Roderick the slain man's widow and Ernest L. Hillebrandt, were expected to go free ,but Woodring's change of attitude delayed the hearings.

Woodridge was named by the widow as solely responsible for the slaying, but he denied his guilt and today said, "Minnie knows all about this murder if she wants to tell it."

In the light of this statement sensational developments were anticipated for the morrow.

Roderick, a La Honda rancher, was found last week with a bullet hole in his head at the bottom of a deep well near his ranch house.

Cattle rustling and love affairs of which he had been suspected have played a large part in the investigations which culminated in the arrest and detention of his widow, Woodring, and Hillebrandt.

LUCICH CASE NEARS END

SAN RAFAEL, July 2.—UP—Final arguments of the defense in the trial of Vincent Lucich on charges of first degree murder which were filed after Melville G. Sturtevant, government informer in prohibition cases, was shot to death, were ended late today.

WIFE OF GANG CHIEF TALKS IN L. A. LINGLE PROBE

LOS ANGELES, July 2. —UP—After hours of questioning by the Los Angeles and Chicago officers, Mrs. Dorothy Foster, wife of Frank Foster, Chicago gangster, revealed information characterized as "a very important link in the slaying of Alfred Lingle" it was announced here tonight.

The statement of the pretty 24-year old woman was made to Blayney Matthews, chief investigator for District Attorney Buron Fitts, of Los Angeles.

Matthews said it was an important development in the case filed against Foster, indicted in Chicago for the slaying of the Tribune police reporter, and five of his associates, under arrest here on suspicion of murder. The investigator refused, however, to reveal the slightest hint of what Mrs. Foster had told him.

Warrant Out

At the same time in municipal court a fugitive warrant, charging Foster wih the Lingle murder, was sworn to by Edgar Dudley, Chicago investigator. No bail was set.

The men and Mrs. Foster were then taken to the county jail, where they were booked "hold for investigation."

Dudley's action, following the Chicago indictment, was taken as an indication that every precaution will be taken against any attempts to "spring" Foster from jail before he can be returned to Chicago.

Papers Soon

Extradition papers were expected to arrive here Thursday morning from Sacramento. They probably will be signed by Governor C. C. Young later in the day, it was said at the governor's summer office.

According to Matthews, Mrs. Foster was the only member of the party willing to talk about "anything important."

While he refused to give any details of the lengthy conversation, he and Investigator Ed King held with the woman, it was generally conceded at the district attorney's office that the information dealt with the actual slayer of the reporter, who was shot down in a loop subway in Chicago.

It was indicated tonight that the four men arrested with Foster Friday night probably will be

SEA FLIERS LAND AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, July 2—(U.P.)—The world - girdling plane Southern Cross landed here late today after saluting the endurance flying Hunter Brothers with the traditional mark of respect in the air, a quick dip and a double circle.

Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith was escorted by a bevy of planes from Sky Harbor then to Curtiss Airport where a reception committee and city notables waited to greet them.

The trans-Pacific and trans-Atlantic fliers dropped their big plane to spend the night before continuing on to Salt Lake City and San Francisco to complete their jaunt around the world. They flew here direct from New York.

The aviators did not announce when they would take off for the west, but orders to refuel and to tighten the Southern Cross at the field, indicated that they probably would start the last leg of the journey early tomorrow.

MESSER HURT IN CAR CRASH

At a late hour last night, the condition of George Messer, local restaurant proprietor, seriously injured in an automobile accident yesterday morning was about the same, according to advices from the Hospital Richmond.

Messer, according to his physician, Dr. L. H. Fraser, is suffering from a fractured left arm, a fractured pelvis bone, broken ribs, concussion of the brain and possible internal injuries. He has a fighting chance for recovery, Dr. Fraser said.

According to police reports, Messer was found in an overturned car at the side of Cutting boulevard by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thompson, 5410 Cutting boulevard, who ran from their home upon hearing the crash.

Edgar A. Bersin, 38, 11 Washington avenue, according to Messer's report to police, was driving when the accident occurred.

Bersin, denied driving the machine and is being held in the Richmond police department charged with driving while under the influence of liquor.

Later yesterday afternoon Bersin confessed to police that he was driving the machine and admitted ownership.

According to police, Bersin disappeared after the car turned over, leaving Messer in the rear seat of the machine. He was later found at his home.

Bail has been set at $2500 cash or $5000 property bond, which, at a late hour last night Bersin had been unable to raise.

According to police, the car was being operated without license plates, and police records show Bersin was convicted of speeding some time ago and his license taken away by the court.

It will then be extended to the factory property along the line of the building. Work was started on the south end of the track in the Ford property, and it is expected that two weeks will be required to complete the grade.

Marshall and Higgins were awarded the contract for grading the spur from the United Commercial company of San Francisco, which is the general contractor for the new track.

The meeting was expected to lead to a debate of the acreage curtailment measure as a means of improving grain prices. Gov. Clyde M. Reed, of Kansas, will attend. PAIR PASSES 500 HOURS IN AIR

CHICAGO July 3.—Thursday—UP—Favored by better flying weather the endurance airplane "City of Chicago" ended its 513th hours of continuous flight at 1:40 a. m. CDT today.

As the hour passed, the City of Chicago swooped low over the field and blinked its navigating lights, indicating all was well aboard.

CHICAGO, July 2.—UP—The flying Hunter brothers turned the 500 hour goal they set for themselves originally into a mere milestone tonight in their epochal endurance flight.

John and Kenneth "Beans" Hunter completed their 21st day in the oil splashed cabin of their second-hand Stinson Detroiter monoplane just before sundown. That meant 504 hours or 84 hours more than the old St. Louis Robin record of 420 hours.

They weren't particularly thrilled by their achievement. They were too busy in a little private argument about when they'd better come down. And while arguing they were having their own troubles keeping their rapidly deteriorating plane in the air.

Suit Seen

The fact that a sheriff's summons will await them when they land didn't make the boys feel any better.

Sheriff Matt Porten served chancery summons on the "Chicago World Will Corporation," backing the flight, and its members including the four Hunter brothers, Thomas P. Gordon, S. L. Majewski, Michael Conroy and the Chicago Title and Trust company. Apparently it was to force payment of money to finance a flight made last year which resulted in financial failure despite a record of almost three hundred hours which stood for several weeks in 1929.

"Beans," who is 21-years old and a veteran airplane stunt artist for all that, is ready to come down. He would like a bath, said he, a bed and a week, uninterrupted by roaring motors, thunder storms and spraying grease, during which to sleep.

Lot Of Money

John, four years older, and therefore somewhat more practical, has his mind's eye on the $2500 they hope to get for every day they drone above Sky Harbor airport. That's a lot of money, John pointed out, for a couple of ex-coal mi-

FIRE RAZES PRISON CELLS

FRANKFORT, July 2.—UP—Fire raged through the three ancient frame workshops of the Kentucky state reformatory late today, periled lives of 500 convicts and razed the buildings with a loss of $200,000.

None were injured, said authorities in starting an investigation to determine if the fire was incendiary.

One prison official said, however, that he believed the flames started first in the broom factory from sparks belching from a switch engine nearby.

The blaze quickly swept through another shop and then into the three story chair factory before it was discovered. All the shops were inside a high wall near the buildings used to house 2380 inmates.

The 500 men in the building quickly were marched from the flaming structures.

Application for a marriage license was made in Oakland yesterday by Carl Oscar Johanson, 33 of Oakland, and Margaret Catherine Vierra, 17 of El Cerrito.

ALL-AMERICAN NET FINALS SEEN

WIMBLEDO.., Eng., July 2.—UP—An all-Aemrican finish in the men's and women's singles of the British tennis cahmpionship was provided here today.

Big Bill Tilden and Wilmer Allisno, the young Texan, will meet in the men's finals.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody and Miss Elizabeth Ryan, Californians, are to play the deciding women's contest.

Tilden's finals berth was won by a fine victory over Jean Borotra, France's 'Bounding Basque." Scores were: 0-6, 6-4, 4-6, 6-0 and 7-5. Allison won over John Doeg of Santa Monica, Calif., 6-3, 4-6, 8-6, 3-6 and 7-5.

Mrs. Moody won from Mme. Rene Mathieu of France, 6-3, 6-2. Miss Ryan won by default against Fraulein Cilly Aussem of Germany.

Fraulein Aussem's defeat came when she fell in the third set of her match. She sustained painful injuries to each ankle. Miss Ryan had won the first set, 6-3, and lost the second, 0-6. They were four-all in games, with Miss Ryan leading at 40-love in the ninth game, when the German girl fell in a faint. It is doubtful if she will be able to continue play with Bill Tilden in the mixed doubles.

REFINERY NINE WINS FAST CONTEST

The gods of baseball were in a very whimsical mood yesterday afternoon when the Refinery narrowly edged out the All-Standards by a score of 10 to 9 after one grand ball game.

All the thrills, fates, and technicalities of the sport of baseball were included in yesterday's hectic clash. Heavy hitting, errors, startling catches, freak hits, and unexpected brilliancy on the part of several weak hitters continually kept the atmosphere on the First street diamond filled with uncertainty and excitement.

The All-Standards started out in the very first inning to win a ball game, and Thorson garnered one run in this period. An epidemic of errors enabled Billy Lane to sail home in the last half of the same inning. The next scoring was done in the third by Wickesser and Muth of the All-Standards. The Refinery retaliated in the same inning, when Bartram, Lane and Autry reached home. Things were again thrown out of balance in the fourth period, with Thorson, Wickesser and Muth of the All Standards tapping the much-tapped the home plate.

Wickesser whammed out his fifth home run of the season. The Refinery came back in the same inning with a terrific hitting rally. Billy Lane collected a homer in htis period and Bartram, Lamarra, Autry and Campbell also earned runs. Lear and Lais added two counters to the All-Standards total in the fifth inning, but the Refinery again increased its lead in the last of the fifth when Chick Autry reached home plate.

The trailing All-Standards attempted to rally in the last inning, but Billy Yore collected their only score. Two men were left on base when Fink struck out to end the contest.

Hits were especially plentiful yesterday at First street. Didier was nicked for nine hits, while Deardoff allowed 11.

Homers were collected by Wickesser and Lane. Lear earned a triple; and two base hits were gained by Wickesser, Muth, Cullers, Lais, Didier and Lamarra.

Souvenirs Cost Chicago Hotels

CHICAGO, July 2.—UP—It costs Chicago hotels between $15,000 and $20,000 a year to supply guests with souvenirs to take home to show the folks, according to figures released by E. E. Holt, comptroller of the Palmer House. The figures are based upon a survey of 16 Chicago hotels. The average is about three-fourth to 11-4c per dollar of food bought, Holt said.

Guard Jailed After Spree

CREMONIA—Carlo Pariscenti is a kind-hearted man who guards the prisoners in the penitentiary of Crema near here.

On the occasion of the annual festival for the patron saint of the town, he dressed himself in his best and was setting out to have a good time in town, when one of the prisoners under remand, jocularly asked him to take him with him. Pariscenti agreed, and prisoner and guard went out together and passed a very agreeable evening, the penitentiary guard paying for all the drinks, against the prisoner's promise to repay with interest.

When the fun was finished, prisoner and guard returned, and the latter locked up his man again.

Unfortunately, an officer heard of the incident, and Pariscenti is now doing a spell in the cells himself.

In this time of trouble our sympathy goes out to Mussolini. It must be pretty discouraging to find that he has not scared anybody ,after all.

HEALTH

By DR. G. A. ESTERBERG

Dear Doctor: I have suffered for years with stomach trouble. It is impossible to find any foods to agree with me, everything I eat seems to distress me and sometimes causes severe pain. I am very undernourished. Would a condition as severe as this yield to any form of diet or would you suggest some form of treatments that would help me?

Yours very truly,
LEAH A.

In answer to L A.—I will say no matter what form of treatment you may take, your diet is very essential. First of all you should use some proper feeding system that will eliminate the toxins that are evidently present in your intestinal tract. Then when you have a clean blood stream flowing thru ever cell in your body you will be ready to re-build your body.

Creation has just two primal energies. Everything existing is composed of these energies. On one side we have the alkaline. On the other side we have the acid energies. Acid energy in excess is disease. Therefore, you must balance your foods to equalize these two energies. The foods are to the body what bricks are to the house. They build the entire physical body.

Fruits and vegetables are nature's eliminators. In your place where digestion is poor and excess of fermentation and gas takes place I would suggest that you eat the fruits and vegetables separately. Wait 30 minutes between. Do not be alarmed about the gas, after a few eliminations it will subside.

After your body is cleansed use your body builders such as almonds pecans, walnuts, eggs, mushrooms peas, lima beans, navy beans, lentils, avocado pears, butter, cheese, lamb, fish and fowl.

These foods are acid producing and should not be eaten alone. Combine them with fruits.

Dear Doctor:

My husband 39 years old, has had an ulcer on his tongue for several months and it does not seem to heal.

He seems to feel no bad effect from it except that he feels dizzy at times of late. Will you please tell me what the cause of the ulcer may be.

Respectfully yours,
MRS. W. F.

There are the following causes for ulceration of the tongue. It may be of a cancerous condition. Or it may be syphilitic. It may be caused from a sharp tooth, when it is called dental ulcer. Or it may be dyspeptic. Or it may be caused from inflammation of the mouth. And then again tuberculous, due to infection with tuberculous bacilli brought up into the mouth from the lungs or larynx.

Ulcers from an infected mouth may be due to a variety of causes, such as decayed teeth, alkalies, acids, or mercury and are usually not confined to the tongue alone, but appear on the cheeks and gums as well.

The club proposes to stimulate better and more lovable personalities among the ladies and "general improvement of dates." Among the things forbidden are 'drinking necking, smoking in public, 'gold-digging 'and more than one date a night."

FIGHTERS READY FOR JULY 4 CONTEST

SAN FRANCISCO, July 2.—With their fireworks their fists stored safely away in a cold, dry place until the call comes to enter the ring, "Young" Jack Thompson, welterweight champion of the world and "Young" Corbett, foremost contender for the title, will attempt to explode their weapons on each other in their scheduled non-title bout at Ewing Field here tomorrow.

With Thompson weighing 145 pounds and Corbett slated to scale not more than 148 pounds, both camps expressed great confidence on the outcome of the battle.

Thompson appears to be in great physican condition. It is true that he has not shown sufficient in the gymnasium to give him better than a short-ender's chance against Corbett, but there is a feeling that the negro has restrained himself in order to cut down the odds.

Corbett never felt better. He is in perfect condition. His mental condition is also good. "I'll knock Thompson out this trip," is his confident prediction.

The pair will weigh in at the Roof Garden of the Whitcomb hotel at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. The referee for the bout is expected to be chosen at ringside.

With the program starting at 1 o'clock sharp, the main event will begin not later than 2:15 o'clock.

The preliminary program follows: "Irish" Del Kennedy vs. "Young" Johnny Burns, six rounds, Tom Toner vs. Ernie Stout, six rounds; Vernon Jackson vs. Angel de La Cruz, six rounds; Abie Israel vs. Elwin Lee, four rounds; Al Manfredo vs. Johnny Deters, four rounds.

WHEAT MEN WARNED BY U. S.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—UP—A forthright warning to wheat growers that sharp reductions in acreage are imperative if they are to receive any profits in the next six to 10 years was made tonight by the agriculture department in a world wheat outlook.

Portraying gloomily the prospects for wheat profits during the next decade in the face of increasing production and declining demand, the survey said extensive adjustments in wheat acreage "must be made if production is to be profitable to growers."

Discussing the effect of the new tariff law on the farmer, Agriculture Secretary Hyde said today in a radio speech that the average income per farm "would be increased by about $150 if the new tariff were fully effective."

Increase Seen

Taking the average farm income of $1,159 a year, he said the tariff might increase the farmers' budget by 4 percent or about $48 a year.

"However," he added, "50 percent of the American farmer's purchase is for commodities produced by American agriculture. About 39 percent of his expenditures is for commodities on the free list. This leaves only 11 percent of his expenditures for commodities which have a tariff and in which he is not interested as a producer. This, he said, would leave the average family's budget $6 a year greater.

The world outlook warning, the most far reaching ever issued to grain growers, recommended that wheat farmers seriously consider devoting substantial portions of their wheat acreage to other crops or to livestock. Keen competition will continue in the export trade with the likelihood that Russia will again become an important factor soon, it added.

Report Made

Issuance of the report with its pessimistic conclusions was the opening shot in a new campaign by agriculture leaders here for curtailment of acreage.

"While improvement is expected over the low level of prices in the past month," the department's statement said, "the present prospect is that world wheat prices during the next seven years will average appreciably lower than in the past seven years.

"Under the pressure of the accumulated wheat surplus reinforced in 1929 by large crops of other cereals in Europe and a world-wide business depression accompanied by a marked decline in commodity prices in general, wheat prices have fallen below the low levels reached in 1923-24."

Present prospects are that the 1930 wheat crop will be only a trifle larger than the small 1929 crop, it added.

Rich Quapaw Widow Feasts Funeral Group

QUAPAW, Okla., July 2.—UP—Mrs. Flora Whitebird, wealthy widow of the late chief of the Quapaw tribe, now holds three funeral memorial services each year, costing her several thousand dollars.

Three times a year a multitude which participated in the original funeral rites for Mrs. Whitebird's husband, daughter and son, gathers at the Whitebird homestead and feasts each time upon food and meat costing $2000.

Mrs. Whitebird, in accordance with an ancient tribal custom, has been holding annual memorial feasts for her husband and daughter for the last 10 years. She observes one in memory of the husband, Chief Harry Whitebird, who died in 1919; another in memory of her daughter, Alma, who died in 1918, and now one each year for her son, Alphonso.

The son, Alphonso, died recently, and in the wake of his burial, Indians white friends and neighbors numbering more than 500 came to the customary feast. There were no festivities except that all were urged to fill themselves as guests of the Whitebird family.

The Whitebird family has realized more than $1,000,000 in royalties from lead and zinc mines operated on the family land allotments. Mrs. Whitebird owns and operates more than 1000 acres of farm land in the Quapaw reservation. She has more than $300,000 in cash, held in trust for her by the Secretary of the Interior.

Senator Heflin of Alabama says the recent defeat of Senator Simmons of North Carolina was an error, but it looked more like a put-out, from where we sat.

Denver Records Rangoon Quake

DENVER, Colo., July 2.—UP—When a disastrous earthquake hit Rangoon, India recently, rolling up a terrible death toll, the shock was recorded on the North American continent only in Denver.

Seismologists at Regis College, who detected the shock, explained this was because Denver was the diametrical antithesis of Rangoon, that is, the greatest distance away that it is possible to measure on this planet.

THE CUCKOOS TO BE SHOWN TODAY

Filled with delirious fun and hilarious nonsense, "The Cuckoos," Radio Pictures' wild riot of waggery, opens today at the Fox-California theater. The show brings the talking screen somethign entirely new in entertainment.

"The Cuckoos" is not a revue. It's not a musical comedy, although comedy and music hold full sway through the production. The show is a distinct departure from the conventional, offering a well-knit story which serves as a background for the antics of the maddest pair of comics ever to grace the screen—Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey who won picture fame in "Rio Rita."

Romance has not been neglected and a tender love strain is carried by June Clyde and Hugh Trevor. Wheeler and Woolsey are capably aided in their lunacy by Dorothy Lee and Jobyna Howland. Ivan Lebedoff and Mitchell Lewis are the "bad men" and Marguerita Padula lends her glorious voice to a number of song hits.

Filmed partly in Technicolor, offering ten lilting hit songs, numbering more than a thousand in its cast and containing the liveliest set of chorus presentations ever brought to the screen, "The Cuckoos" is said to have everything that makes for perfect screen entertainment.

Swedish Animal Painter, Now 70

STOCKHOLM. — Sweden, a foremost animal painter, Bruno Liljefors, whose works are hung in the museums of Gothenburg, Florence, Dresden, Munich and Brooklyn, has just celebrated his 70th birthday. In spite of his age, Liljefors is still hard at work and spends much of his time in the fields and woods studying his wild models.

On these excursions, the artist goes unarmed and carries neither camera nor sketch book. But his memory is unusually retentive and if he sees something picturesque he remembers it in detail and puts it down on a canvas when he returns to his studio.

Liljefors now lives not far from Upsala, Sweden's ancient university city, where he was born in May, 1860.

Tokyo Seal Is Recovered

TOKYO, July 2.—UP—Certain officials of the Tokyo Prefectural Office are beginning to breathe normally again after worry and frantic search.

The Prefectural seal, without which the weights and measures bureau cannot carry on its official duties, disappeared. Then just as mysteriously as it had vanished the seal reappeared in a plain envelope which had been mailed from the central postoffice.

Even the reappearance of the seal did not allay the official anxiety however, for it was feared that the thief might have made a copy of the seal for his own use.

Finally suspicion was thrown upon a clerk in the bureau. He confessed the theft but denied he had made any illegal use of the seal.

Austrian Youth Saved From Mob

VIENNA, July 2.—UP— In the Austrian village Suessenbrunn a 19-year old laborer named Konrad Kornberger was almost killed recently by a mob who wished to lynch him because he fired a number of revolver shots at a local saloon keeper named Richard Fuchs.

CENSUS OF ALL INDUSTRIES STARTED

Designed to aid President Hoover's campaign to relieve unemployment throughout the United States, and to gather data on the other problems of the building industries, a census of the construction industry has been started by John W. Curry, chief of special supervisors in charge of of the northern and central California district.

The Builders' Exchange on 14th street will be headquarters for their work in Richmond, with H. H. Turley, sworn deputy of the United States Bureau of Census in charge.

The new building census, the first of its kind ever taken by the Census Bureau will include information from all contractors doing a gross amount of business of $25,000 and over during 1929. The term 'contractors' Census Bureau directors point out, includes general contractors, subcontractors, jobbing contractors, and all other persons or firms doing construction work, excepting railroads and public uitlity companies.

Not only will building construction work by contract be included, but in addition those building to sell must report, as well as the bridge, highway, harbor and other builders.

This canvass was recommended by the Advisory Committee on Distribution, which is composed of nationally known business men appointed by the secretary of Commerce. As a result of the urgent request of national contractors associations and others prominent in the construction industry.

The information when analyzed and made available should be of much value in promoting the interests of the industry, resulting in a decrease of unemployment. Like all other forms of census, all information supplied will be treated in strict confidence. All reports made will be grouped in such a manner that no information on any single firm can be ascertained.

Although the personal canvass in the construction census was started during the early part of June, questionnaires from the Bureau of Census at Washington, were mailed some time ago. A record of a llthose who have returned their reports has been supplied the local census office and those firms and persons will not be called upon.

In some instances firms which have already made other reports will be asked to supply reports segregating the construction work from other types of business.

Langdon Will Know Result Of Suit On Monday

LOS ANGELES, July 2.—UP—Harry Langdon, motion picture comedian, will know next Monday if he must pay $11,500 to Thomas J. O'Brien, former Toledo engraver, as the result of the latter's contention that the actor stole the love of his wife, Helen, who now is Mrs. Langdon.

Superior Judge Samuel Blake today took under submission the suit which had been argued for two weeks.

O'Brien claimed Langdon stole the love of his wife, and to avoid a threatened alienation of affections suit, paid $10,000 in cash and gave notes for $11,500. He alleged the notes never had been paid.

The defense contended that Mrs. O'Brien's love for her husband had been chilled by acts of cruelty long before the comedian stepped into the domestic picture.

Irate Citizen Seeks Rooster Crowing Ban

MEREDIAN, Miss.—A law to prohibit roosters crowing between 3:30 and 6:30 a. m. is asked by an 'indignant citizen" in a letter to Mayor W. H. Owens.

"The cock-a-doodle-do of my neighbor's roosters distrub my morning sleep and I want something done about it, preferably a city ordinance," the citizen wrote.

Over He Goes

SLOW SPEED AT RAIL CROSSING HELD AN ESSENTIAL PRECAUTION

WASHINGTON, July 2.—Reduction in the speed of automobiles when approaching railway grade crossings to 15 miles an hour if the view of the tracks is not clear and unobstructed for at least 400 feet in both directions, is defined by the third National Conference on Streeet and Highway Safety as an essential precaution in preventing accidents at these places.

If the obstruction to view is extreme, or there is other unusual danger, the conference favors a complete stop before entering on the tracks.

If the operator of the vehicle can see the tracks for 400 feet or more in both directions, then a speed of 25 miles an hour at the crossing is indicated by the conference. The reckless driving penalty, in the view of the conference, should be enforced upon drivers who pass over crossings at speeds in excess of 25 miles an hour.

Due Caution

Crossings should not be entered upon at any time, according to the conference, until the vehicle operator has exercised due precaution, and has definite assurance that a train is not approaching from either direction.

In considering the crossing problem the conference points out that notwithstanding the work of eliminating grade crossings, the expenditure for which has averaged $60,000,000 a year for the last three years, the number of new crossings is increasing faster than others are being removed by viaducts or underpasses. In 1928 there were 1204 crossings eliminated and 2,068 new crossings were opened to traffic.

While the accidents at crossings have remained at slightly less than 6000 a year since 1925, and there has not been an appreciable increase in the number of deaths per year at such points still the number of deaths in 1929 was 2,485 and 6,804 others were injured.

Protect Crossings

The situation is such that the conference urgently declared that protection of crossings through more adequate signals, signs and markings as well as greater safety precautions by vehicular drivers, are essential to reducing this phase of the accident toll.

In considering the elimination of crossings, the conference said:

"Elimination of railway grade crossings, either by relocation of highways or rail lines or by grade separation, which constitutes the only perfect solution of the problem should be carried on under a proper program. First for elimination should be the most dangerous crossings on thoroughfares carrying heavy traffic."

Joint Study

"The program should have due regard to the relative costs and advantages of grade crossing elimination, and other methods of protection, and should be given a most thorough joint consideration by proper authority. In laying out new highways or railroads, or relocating existing highways or railroads, grade crossings should be avoided or eliminated whenever it is feasible.

"In eliminating grade crossings narrow or obstructed underpasses and sharp turns in the approaches should be avoided. Authority to order grade separations or proper protection at grade crossings should be vested in the commission having jurisdiction over the railways, and this commission should also determne the proper division of costs between the railroads and the public in states where this is not predetermined by state law.

"The state highway department or other highway authority should plan the improvement and initiate the proceedings for all the highways under their jurisdiction. Time is an essential element and a prompt decision should be provided for it in the law."

Of the 240,000 grade crossings in the United States, 205,933 are protected by fixed signs; 5,707 have crossing gates; 7,297 are provided with crossing watchmen; 8,004 have visible and audible signals; 3,635 have visible signals only; 4,572 have audible signals only, and 4,941 have no signs or markings at all.

The conference stated that in order to facilitate the prompt arrangement of more adequate protection at crossings, there should be a fair division of the costs, including the elimination of abstructions to view and other hazards between the state or county governments and the railroads. The conference said:

"Protection of railway grade crossings should include reduction of physical hazards and the installation of special protective measures.

Level Highways

"Reducing physical hazards to a minimum requires a practically level and smooth highway surface over the tracks for at least 25 feet and preferably 50 feet on each side; approach on grades not exceeding four or five percent; widening of roadway at the crossings; avoidance of all sharp turns and junctions within 250 feet; avoidance of standing railroad cars; parked highway vehicles or other temporary obstacles; and removal of banks, trees, shrubs, standing crops, of buildings, billboards and other permanent obstructions to sufficient view; special care where artificial lighting of crossings is practicable to locate the lights so as to illuminate the fixed signs without glare interfering with the visibility."

The conference recommended that each crosing should be provided with standard fixed signs, as follows:

1. An advance sign at each highway approach; in addition on hard surfaced, heavy traveled highways, and where railroad traffic is fast or frequent, the standard form of pavement markings approved by the American Association of State Highway Officials.

2. If the view of the track is not obstructed and no special hazard exists, a 25-mile speed sign; if the view is obstructed, a 15-mile speed sign; and if due to extreme limitation of view or of other special hazards, the proper authority has designated the railroad crossing as one at which all vehicles must stop, a standard stop sign; where the speed or stop sign cannot be seen sufficiently in advance, a standard slow sign in advance of the slow sign.

3. At all crossings a standard railroad cross-buck sign, carrying indication of the number of tracks in the case of multiple tracks.

At crossings where the movement of trains is frequent, the conference believes that other means should be provided to give warning to the vehicle driver. Such warnings, the conference declared, should consist of automatic train approach signals, of either wig-wagging or flashing lights or manually controlled gates, signals or watchmen where frequent switching movements, or shortness of intervals of trains, require more prompt indications and clearances of the crossings.

Art Expose Hits Louvre

PARIS, July 2.—UP—After exposure of the "Old Masters" gang of French art fakers and the discovery of two false Watteaux tableaux in the Louvre museum. French art experts and museum officials voiced the opinion that there are more than 20,000 make paintings by old and new masters in the museums of the world. They represent a complete loss of a million dollars or more, it is said.

The Louvre is looked upon as the most careful and authoritative museum in the world, and it is rare that its experts are deceived, but the two Watteaux, purchased in 1927 for 1,500,000 francs "The May Planting" and "Fete in the Fields or Dance of the Villagers" have been proven to be the work of Quillard and not Watteaux. That lowers their value greatly.

Physically, however, if the Paris experts were unable to distinguish between a Watteaux and a Quillard, museum officials believe that is proof that most of the Watteaux in foreign museums are merely Quillard canvasses. To regain its 1,500,000 france, the Louvre has started suit against the dealer who sold and guaranteed the paintings as the works of Watteaux.

The experts pretend that more than half the paintings found in French bric-a-bac shops are mere copies, although tourists and others scour these shops in the hope of finding a real Corot, Millet or Cezanne hiding under a layer of dust.

The Louvre points out that there are catalogues recording every known work of the old and new masters and that there is only one chance in a million of finding a real masterpiece in a junk heap.

EUROPE SEES AMERICA AS MECCA

PARIS, July 2. —UP—Forward-looking Europeans are beginning to lay their preparations for the annual journeys to Nashville, Topeka and Albuquerque, say in 1990, For by the turn of the next century the blase Continental confidently expects the tourist tables to be turned — the stream flowing — both in man power and in gold — the other way.

The Tennessee metropolis is largely responsible for the prediction, inasmuch as the casual announcement that the city fathers there intend to build a Parthenon that will eclispe the Athenian original in everything but age, has literally and painfully floored the Old World. Editors gasped, and smiled, swallowed hard and then murmured "what next?"

Then, guessing being a free game, with no holds barred, they began to conjecture. Other American cities would follow Nashvilles lead. In a few years, Springfield, Ill., would have a replica of the Leaning Tower of Pisa. Denver would erect an imposing Cleopatra's Needle in front of the new Denver & Rio Grande Western station. Providence, R. I. would have its Giradla de Seville, And so on. Fifty-six Coliseums would be strung from Maine to California. One hundred and sixty-two Campaniles of St. Mark's from Florida to Alaska. Kansas and South Dakota would be littered with Trianon Palaces and Diocetian Baths.

But not all the eager writers on the subject are inclined to scoff or ridicule. Some, recalling with utmost candor that the monuments of Europe, rather than the people or their contemporary life, draw the bulk of the American tourist trade every summer, see the possibility in the not too far distant future — a hundred years or so — of an American antiquity, pathetic remnant of a once prosperous nation.

An example in support of their views is England, nearer to hand than the older Continent. It is emphasized that even 50 years ago no one could have convinced an Englishman that his country would ever stoop to beckoning of tourists, much less that he would one day be obliged to turn over his castles and paintings.

THE WOMAN OF IT

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

Yes---It Women Could!

SINCE, sooner or later, some Adam always arises to say, "The woman did it, Lord!"—none of us need be surprised that our sex is now held responsible for unemployment. The charge was brought the other night by Edward Smith and Prof. Paul Douglas, addressing the American Woman's Association. They did not repeat the more or less familiar accusation that, if women would give up their jobs, there would be enough jobs to go around for men. (And then, of course, men would so joyfully assume the burden of supporting all the unemployed women—YES, THEY WOULD!)

MARGUERITE MOOERS MARSHALL

Even more unfair, to the thoughtful woman, seems the particular load of blame for unemployment which Mr. Smith and Prof. Douglas deposited on feminine shoulders.

If women, they said, could make up their minds in advance what they were going to wear during the coming season, they would contribute much toward the solution of the unemployment problem.

Yes, if women could—if women might—if women were permitted to "make up their minds in advance what they were going to wear during the coming season"—wouldn't it be grand! But have the men who make the fashions ever granted this permission to women? Have they ever in any way consulted women about what they were going to wear?

On the contrary, these czars of style have laid down the law from on high, saying to the female sex, "This is what you MUST wear, because we're not going to design or sell anything else!"

WHEN was there a more notable example of women's powerlessness to "make up their minds in advance what they were going to wear" than in last year's swift and complete reversal of what were, on the whole, the most comfortable and intelligent styles ever worn by women? Almost overnight women were told that they were going back to long skirts and corsets, and that was all there was about it!

Not quite all, of course. For even if, as usual, women were given no chance to "make up their minds in advance," an appreciable number made up their minds on the spot that they WOULD NOT wear chain armor and street-sweepers, even if they had to keep on wearing last year's clothes.

They won at least a partial victory. Even French designers finally conceded that the long skirts should be reserved for formal occasions, and the threatened corset was remodeled and modified into comparative comfort. Nevertheless, we much doubt that if women in general had been asked or even allowed to "make up their minds in advance what they were going to wear," there would have been a majority for the long skirt on any occasion. In a poll conducted by The Evening World, two-thirds of the votes were in favor of keeping all skirts short. Just the other day at Ascot girls tripped over their trailing nether garments, and some half a million dollars' worth were ruined by a sudden downpour. We understand that the debutantes are still swearing over the awkwardness of running up or down steps in a fashionable dancing frock.

AS WINIFRED RAUSHENBUSH points out, in the current New Freeman, the Fashion Trust hasn't the faintest idea of what clothes most American women want. "The gentlemen of the textile industry," she says, "would presumably sell their immortal souls to know which of the 25,000 models they buy, steal, or adapt from the great French designers are going to sell by the dozens, and which are going to sell by the ten-thousands. Because most fashions do not live longer than two to four months, and because the business men of the Fashion Mill do not know what women want, there is a considerable loss from markdowns."

But, continues Miss Raushenbush, the Fashion Trust has only itself to blame. It doesn't condescend to design fashions with the advice and consent of women; it prefers to take the biggest of gambling chances. The goddess of the Fashion Mill, like Justice, is blindfolded. And to complete her costume, she wears a high hat!

Lately, in the last year, many women's organizations have passed resolutions asking, as the Woman's Club of Forest Hills puts it, that "a few women of good taste and judgment, without business affiliations, be permitted to sit in consultation with the Fashion Trust to represent the mass of women who are to be the consumers."

Oh, yes, intelligent women would like to be able to "make up their minds in advance what they were going to wear during the coming season"—and not merely because their considered decisions would help to solve the unemployment problem. Women would like to be advance arbiters of their own clothes because they could thus save time, money, temper. Also because they could serve their own convenience and taste. Also because they are sick to death of being told by men what to wear!

IN THE BEDROOM

How can he go to bed
Up in that little room
Now she is in a tomb?

The whole place speaks of her:
She fashioned the bright spread
Soon after they were wed.

Her sewing-baskets stand
On the table as they were
When she made a gay stir.

The chintz of the easy chair
In which she worked and planned
Was cut with her own hand.

Her clothes are hanging still
Next to his own, and there
In the brush is some of her hair.

They loved so well, they grew
To have one wish and will.
One purpose to fulfil.

They were old-fashioned, they
Had a bed made for two,
Not as to-day folks do.

When his palms grope their way
Emptily, what do they say
To the heart that burned so much,
Once, at their search and touch?

J. H. WALLIS.

And It's Sentimental Men Jurors Who Meet the Demand

"As long as I occupy the bench law violators are going to be punished regardless of sex," announces Judge George W. Johnson of Texarkana, Texas. "Men have a tendency to be lenient with women, but when they violate the law they become criminals and must be prosecuted."

And that's perfectly all right with any fair-minded feminist. It's the parasites and gold-diggers who demand special sex privilege in the courts.

Oh, Go to Bed

By Eliot Kays Stone

"DAD, how does a bee hum? Is he trying to sing?"

"No, the bee has no voice-box. The bee hums with his wings. As the wings strike the air, they set it in motion, and we can hear the moving air or air waves."

"Why doesn't a bird hum?"

"The humming bird does, but most birds move their wings too slowly for us to hear the vibrations.

"Are we too fast to catch slow vibrations?"

"Oh, go to bed."

Picnic Hints

When carrying glass jars to the picnic or camp protect them against breakage. Those serviceable old inner tubes will come in handy for this purpose. Cut the tubes into short lengths, turn them inside out and slip them over the jars.

When preparing the picnic lunch pack the salad in a glass fruit jar or in individual jelly glasses. When opened it will be as fresh as though taken from the refrigerator.

How Mignonette Thrives

By Karin Broberg

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

THE secret of growing good mignonettes lies in growing them without a check. Start them in flats (wooden boxes 12x15 inches in length and 3 inches in depth). Fill these flats with good fibrous loam and leaf mould in equal parts. Place a half-inch of gravel in the bottom of the flat; this is to insure good drainage. It takes about two weeks for the seeds to germinate. Transplant the seedlings as soon as possible. Always remove a ball of earth with each seedling.

While mignonette seed must not be allowed to get dry, neither must it be overwatered.

When the plants get to be about four inches high, pinch out the centre of the middle shoot. Two or three shoots will form from the original stem. This is the method used to produce shapely plants. When the plants attain a height of ten inches, just before flower heads begin to show again, pinch out the top of the stems so the flowers will bloom at the same time. When flower buds develop, give the plants weak manure water about once a week.

This method may also be used to grow mignonette indoors. For December flowering sow the seeds in August. Transplant the seedlings into four-inch pots.

Modernizing the Home

"Well Done"—From the Front Door to the Kitchen

By Alma Zaiss

PROBLEM No. 1

Dear Miss Zaiss:

Please advise suitable furnishings for an apartment foyer. I had in mind a medium-sized oblong table with a lamp on one end and book ends on the other. Also a mirror above the table. However, I am not certain as to whether this is appropriate. (Mrs.) L. L.

PROBLEM No. 2

Dear Miss Zaiss:

Would you give me some suggestions for furnishing a kitchen? Do you think a blue and yellow combination would be a good one? Is terra cotta a good color? I am thinking of having a maple breakfast set but am afraid this would not fit in with the average kitchen which has the customary white finish.

For a living-room I think I should like a rose, French blue and yellow color scheme. What would you suggest for drapes . . . crewelwork, glazed chintz or plain glazed material? What period furniture should I use? Thanking you for your help, I remain (Miss) E. T.

Even in the Least Rooms Charm Is Essential

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

IN SELECTING these two problems for joint treatment we are thinking of the average apartment where too frequently the foyer is long and narrow and perfectly uninteresting from beginning to end. Likewise it often has the misfortune to be cut by a convenient, but unornamental closet door, as well as one leading to the kitchen or bath.

The hostess of such a home is, of course, very careful to keep each door closed to preserve the dignity of her hall. But what of the children, the maid, and even grown daughters and sons who are too much engrossed with other matters to take notice of these small things?

One cannot forever nag about trivial shortcomings, nor follow in the wake of offenders to remedy the situation one's self. But it is possible to make each room opening off the foyer so dainty and colorful and attractive that to glimpse it without a formal invitation leaves nothing but a pleasant memory.

Let us combine the problem of these two readers, then—the one asking for suggestions for a pleasing foyer; the other for a charming kitchen scheme—and see if we cannot make the two dovetail neatly into the greater problem of making the house beautiful and harmonious from the front door to the kitchen.

Evidently Mrs. L. has not thought very deeply about her hallway, for she has given us no details about size, shape or architectural feature. Therefore, we must make suggestions for halls of several different types, and no individual plan can be worked out for her.

If the hall is small and square and cut by doors it may be impossible to give it more than one shallow, small piece of furniture, which could be a little lowboy instead of the usual console table, or a very small desk with a bench or stool that will slip under when not in use. A low carved chest with a wall hanging above it makes a good piece for the little square hall, and, sometimes, when there is not even room to place a sizable piece of furniture against any of the four foyer walls, a quaint corner cabinet with a few interesting bibelots on the shelves proves quite effective.

When the door leading to the living room is placed in the centre of the foyer wall and there is a tiny space at either side, one may use there tall, slender pedestals or wrought iron baskets filled with greens and ivy—a treatment which is more homelike than the stiff torchiers which many seem to use, and which remind us of nothing so much as hotel and theatre decorations.

If Mrs. L.'s foyer happens to be long instead of square, the oblong table and mirror she mentions might look very well, indeed. It is, however, the conventional thing, and she must use care in the selection of the pieces in order to give them character. An oblong table, a lamp and books can be so commonplace—or so naively distinctive, as in the foyer group illustrated in the article published on June 12, where a dropleaf table holding a lamp, books and flower bowl charmingly illustrates the point.

Other good suggestions for the long, narrow foyer are found in to-day's photograph which shows how each wall and each jog of a limited space has been made interesting by a well-chosen piece that is a bit different from those usually selected.

If we think of this setting in the color-terms suggested by its cream wall and the soft blue and rose of its Oriental rug, we shall find ourselves hoping that the kitchen just beyond will reflect these colors instead of showing sharp contrasts or bland, lifeless white.

If that foyer door should open, for example, and show us a strip of dull blue-green kitchen floor, cream-yellow walls and woodwork with turquoise linings for the cupboards, and a quaint maple breakfast set in the nook before the window—we should be more eager than ever to see the rest of this household which carries beauty and good taste into the least of its rooms.

The soft yellow background might also be used with a terra cotta floor and furniture and cabinet linings painted French blue. If it is necessary to retain the white finish in the kitchen the same general scheme could be carried out, but it would not be as thoroughly pleasing as the other combination. White is good with a smart black and white floor and a green and yellow or red and gray scheme. In this instance, however, we are working for harmony instead of contrast with the foyer in blue, rose and cream tones—which happen to give a charming introduction to the preferred scheme Miss T. has suggested for her living room.

Answering her question about draperies—if Miss T.'s furnishings have a colonial or eighteenth century feeling, we should prefer chintz for over-curtains. With walls of pale, creamy yellow and a rug of plain blue the chintz might have a deep cream or yellow background and a floral design showing plenty of blue and rose-red. Deep rose-red (rather than rose) would be good for the couch covering; one chair could be slip-covered in the chintz, one upholstered in blue and one in rose; cushions and chair seats to be in dull gold or gold with a small blue line pattern or stripe.

In another article we shall pursue to-day's topic a little further, and take up the question of attractive schemes for the bathroom, which, when this room happens to open off the long apartment hall or is seen as one ascends the stairs, becomes a very important point in decoration. The suggestions will outline three different color schemes, one of which combines peach, blue and beige—a plan which would lend itself particularly well to a continuation of to-day's general scheme.

THINK IT OVER

By Alfalfa Smith

SUCCESS in life is based primarily upon one thing—A PLAN.

Perhaps it has never occurred to you that there IS such a thing as a successful mother; you have heard of a GOOD mother, but how about a mother who sets out to make her son or daughter WHAT SHE WANTS HIM OR HER TO BE?

Dwell upon this thought—do a little thinking and you will soon change your point of view.

Many great men attest the fact that they owe their greatness to the plans of their mothers.

All great men have great mothers. Ever think of that?

What Your Baby Needs

By Emilie Hoffman

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

"CAN YOU tell me what causes my baby to vomit so much? Somebody told me this is natural. Is that true, and can I do anything to stop it?" asks a "new mother."

I infer your baby vomits habitually. Many infants do so and, if it occurs immediately after a feeding, it may merely signify that baby has overeaten. While this is nothing you need worry about, it should not be neglected. Immediately after feeding place the child in the crib as quietly as possible, laying him on his side and there will, probably, be no regurgitation.

A tight band will often cause vomiting. So investigate this abdominal protection.

Vomiting after feeding is by no means a natural condition with babies, but it is natural that vomiting follows overfeeding. In such cases the amount of food should be lessened, but not sufficiently to put the child in the undernourished class.

The flow of the milk may not be right. If the hole in the nipple is very large the child will get the food too fast and if the hole is very small he will swallow much air that will cause distressing gas in the stomach and consequent regurgitation. The nipple should be so adjusted that it requires from fifteen to twenty minutes to empty the bottle and, in nursing, the flow of the milk can be controlled by the mother by proper pressure of the fingers.

Perhaps your baby is fed too frequently. For a vomiting baby the intervals should be increased. The four-hour interval is now generally adopted with healthy infants.

It is possible the baby is jostled after or while feeding, or he is played with and considerably handled, perhaps he is rocked while feeding.

If the vomiting is caused by wrong feeding, which is often the case, the food must be readjusted to suit the child's condition, and this had better be taken up with the physician or nurse who regulates the diet of the child. In some children the use of malted foods causes vomiting.

If regurgitation occurs some time after the feeding and is repeated the milk may be too rich in fat and the child is suffering with indigestion. For the nursing baby a couple of tablespoonfuls of barley water ten minutes before nursing may allay the distress, but the mother should partake less heartily of rich and heavy foods, especially meat. In bottle feeding the substitution of lime water for plain water in the milk is helpful.

Indigestion should never be regarded lightly. When your baby is fretful, sleeps restlessly, is not gaining in weight and vomits you will do wisely to put him under the care of the physician. Proper treatment in the early stage may check the difficulty and avoid a prolonged illness.

Do You——

Keep the electric lamps clean? They dull with use, and dirty lamps use the same power but give less light than when clean.

Buy only good shoes and have them carefully fitted? They will look better, wear better and you will feel better, for they will be comfortable.

Clean your windows with paraffin? It will prevent fly specks.

TELLING THE WORLD

By Neal O'Hara

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

IT WON'T BE LONG NOW

HOME, sweet home, in 1935:

POP—That was nice strawberry shortcake we had to-night, mom. How'd you make it?

MOM—I didn't. I got it all prepared in a can.

POP—Don't you think it's kind of warm in here?

MOM—It is. Junior, slip out to the electric icebox and turn the jigger to 55 degrees for the living room.

JUNIOR—Yes, mom.

MOM (to daughter)—I should think you'd roast in that house dress, Nellie, with its long train.

NELL—I can't help it. I'd look old-fashioned in a house dress without a train. It's what Paris decrees for this year.

MOM—Well, I think a four-foot train is long enough. These seven and eight-foot trains are ridiculous for a girl of your age.

NELL—I know it. I always said we'd never stand for such nonsense in America, but the fashion houses put it over just the same. And did you see what Paul Poiret predicted for next year's style? Bustles!

* * *

POP—What's on the television to-night?

JUNIOR—I'll look in the paper and see. . . . You can get the English Derby at Epsom Downs or the coronation of King Olgus IV. in Monrovia. Then they're televisioning the second ring of Ringling's Circus from St. Louis at 8.30 or you can get Charley Chaplin's latest release at 9.

MOM—Oh, don't get any of those subjects to-night. I'm tired.

POP—What you been doing all afternoon, mom?

MOM—I was watching a double-header in Pittsburgh between the Pirates and Cards.

POP—I saw the last two innings of the Cubs and Cincinnati on the office television myself. Hornsby got seven home runs.

JUNIOR—In one inning?

POP—No. He got three in the eighth and four in the ninth.

NELL—What did Babe Ruth do to-day?

POP—I didn't watch the Yankees to-day. But he's collected 133 homers to date. Looks like he'll easily get his 350 for the season.

JUNIOR—The Babe is earning his $1,000,000 this season.

POP—He isn't gettin $1,000,000 this season. They compromised last spring on $950,000 a season for three years.

* * *

JUNIOR—You don't want me to turn on the television to-night then?

POP—Gosh, no. I'm fed up. Do you know what I'd enjoy this evening, mom? About fifteen minutes of Amos and Andy.

NELL—Who are Amos and Andy?

POP—To-day they're Correll-Gosden, Inc., heads of the Toothpaste Trust. When I was a little younger, they used to talk on the air.

JUNIOR—Never heard of 'em.

POP—Well, between broadcasts they gradually absorbed all the toothpaste concerns. You see, they got so much money on the radio, the toothpaste companies figured it would be cheaper if they went to work for Amos and Andy.

NELL—I'll bet they weren't as good as Cleon Lish is now. He spoke at the rate of 760 words a minute to-night. He covered the Franco-Italian War situation in 2 3-5 seconds and read all the ball scores in one second flat.

MOM—Well, that isn't getting me anywhere. Junior, turn on that television and get Niagara Falls. I want something peacefull. Or get me Sousa's massed band of 575 pieces, playing through megaphones.

POP (reaching for his coat)—Well, I'm going down to the boiler works to get some rest.

A DISH A DAY

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

Again our tooks' tour takes us to Scotland, for the readers who tried our recipes for Scottish woodcock and for shortbread have requested recipes for typical Scotch wafers to serve with tea. "Something," demands Alma Macquarrie of Pelham, "that will keep fresh for several days so that I can confine my baking to one day a week."

KAREN HOLLIS

Many, many years ago Scotch housewives provided for just such a need. Their Edinburgh tea squares will keep nicely for ten days. The problem is how to manage to keep any of them that long without putting the cookie jar under lock and key. For these tea squares are so tempting one always wants to nibble just one more.

In a family where there are children these are ideal, for they are not very rich and the dates in them are healthful and nourishing.

EDINBURGH TEA SQUARES

1 cup shortening
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup flour
2½ cups rolled oats
½ teaspoon salt

FILLING

1 cup (½ package) dates
1 cup water

Cook the pitted dates with the water over a low flame until a paste is formed. Cool while mixing the dough.

Cream the shortening until it is very soft, then add the sugar gradually. Stir in the sifted flour a little at a time, keeping the mixture soft, then add the rolled oats and salt. Stir and blend until the mixture will hold together. With a spatula spread one-half the mixture over a well-buttered pan. It should not be more than one-quarter inch thick. Spread the filling over this dough, then cover with the remaining half of the mixture. Bake in a moderate oven for thirty minutes.

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."
Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

DISRAELI

By EVE BERNSTEIN

Copyright 1929, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

This novel is based on the Warner Bros. & Vitaphone picture starring George Arliss.

SYNOPSIS

Disraeli, British Minister, has borrowed funds from Hugh Myers, Jewish banker, to purchase the Suez Canal following the refusal of Probert to allow the Bank of England to finance the deal. The Premier has sent Lord Deeford, fiance of Lady Clarissa, to Egypt to close negotiations. He receives word that Deeford has made payment with a blank check on Myers' bank. Almost immediately, however, Myers arrives with the crushing information that he is bankrupt.

In the face of this terrible situation, Mrs. Travers, a spy in the employ of Russia whose Czar is also desirous of securing the canal, arrives at Disraeli's house. He reveals to her that he knows her game.

SIXTH INSTALMENT

A LOOK of horror passed over Mrs. Travers' face, and she cried aloud.

"Pray what has that to do with me?"

"What, indeed? You, the friend of the great bankers—of Ambassadors. Good Mr. Lumley and his charming comrade were driven out to Geneva by the slanderers. Where do you think I saw him next? In Downing Street. He had changed his name to Foljambe. I was so very sorry for him that I gave him work, but you did better. You gave him instructions to hurry up to Trieste. Now, do I remember you, dear Mrs. Lumley, Travers, Foljambe?"

"Now what?"

"Profound admiration until this moment. If you had asked me I would have told you that the telegram meant that the Suez Canal purchase is completed and the check accepted."

Disraeli Bluffs Probert and the Bank of England

"And Meyers bankrupt," Mrs. Travers added, triumphantly.

Disraeli pretended surprise and begged that she do not jest with him while he was so ill, and just when Mrs. Travers began to think she had the upper hand indeed Lady Beaconsfield and Clarissa came in, accompanied by Probert.

"Sorry you are ill, Mr. Disraeli," Probert said.

Disraeli threw off his dressing gown and asked him to sit down, commanding Mrs. Travers, who was ready to go, to sit down also. He was going to say something that would interest her, too.

"Why have you sent for me?" Probert asked, "if you are not ill?"

"I told you I might."

"Has Moses failed you?"

"No. I have carried the scheme through. I have purchased the Suez Canal. As Parliament was not sitting to vote the money, I had to seek it elsewhere. Five million sterling. You refused. So I went to the wealthiest private firm—to Hugh Meyers."

"Ah, a Jew."

"A patriot. He saw the greatness of the idea and stood by me. I sent Deeford to Ismail, but spies got wind of what I was doing, and Russia knew. So Deeford had to go in a hurry. He bought the Canal and paid for it with Meyers' cheque drawn on the Bank of England. Meanwhile Russia has been at work by the intermediation of one of the most fascinating women of my acquaintance." He bowed stiffly to Mrs. Travers. "Now Meyers is bankrupt."

"Mr. Disraeli," Probert began, "I warned you of this. It is no use appealing to me."

"Then I will command! You will sign this note giving Meyers unlimited credit."

"Are you mad?"

"I was never so sane in my life."

"Then I refuse. I am an Englishman, the head of a great national institution. I will not be ordered about by an alien—a Jew."

"Who happens to be the Prime Minister," Disraeli continued in a calm voice. "When it is known that the lack of patriotism of one man has placed our country in the position of a person who is trying to pass a fraudulent cheque, exposed the nation to the ridicule of the world, lost the Canal, lost India, disgraced England, what becomes of the Bank?"

"You cannot touch the Bank."

"I'll smash the Bank," Disraeli shouted. "Parliament granted the Bank its charter. Parliament can withdraw it."

"Good God!" was all Probert could say. He had not dreamed this could happen. He had not considered that there was a higher power that could ruin him.

"And shall withdraw it at my bidding. Your board of directors will be swept away, your shareholders bankrupt. I am Prime Minister. I can do this, and if you don't sign, I will."

Probert was left speechless. For the first time he found himself powerless. He took the paper with trembling hands and signed it and left, a beaten man.

"Oh, Mr. Disraeli," Clarissa said, "thank the Lord you have such power."

Disraeli smiled significantly.

"I haven't, dear child, but he doesn't know that."

On the day that Lord Deeford returned, Queen Victoria was to be crowned Empress of India. It would have been the happiest day of Disraeli's life, if it had not been for the fact that Lady Beaconsfield was too ill to be present at the reception. She was asleep when he left the house, but he left her a message with the garden's choicest flower. Every day he gave her a rose—a symbol of their love. Nothing could compensate for her absence that day, not the fact that he had swayed the House with his eloquence, nor that he had silenced even Gladstone. Some of his staunchest enemies had to admit that Disraeli was a great man, for now that it was done, it was easy to see the importance of the venture. Probert now firmly declared he had always been in accord with Disraeli's views.

Before Her Majesty's arrival, Disraeli thanked the men who had helped him through—Mr. Meyers and Mr. Probert, on whom the Queen had bestowed a peerage, and Deeford, upon whom Her Majesty was going to confer the Ribbon of the Bath with her own hands. Then, as if to complete Disraeli's happiness, Lady Beaconsfield made her appearance. She knew her Dizzy, and in order not to mar what otherwise would have been a perfect day, she had left her bed to be at his side. Arm in arm they waited for the Queen to make her appearance—and close beside them stood Deeford and Clarissa, smiling in happy anticipation of a brilliant future together.

mite—as the governor had stated that he considered Billings' and Mooney's cases parrallel in every particular, and that he would not consider acting in one case without acting at the same time in the other.

YOUNG TO MAKE ANNOUNCEMENT SOON

LOS ANGELES, July 2.—UP—Governor C. C. Young said today that it will be at least three or four days before he made public any decision on the pardons of Thomas Mooney and Warren Billings, serving life in San Quentin for the San Francisco Preparedness Day bombing of 1916.

The governor also said that he would make public no part of the report prepared for him by the supreme court on the case of Billings, who applied for a pardon.

Previously the governor had announced that he intended to be guided in his decision by the findings of the supreme court.

STOCKHOLM.—The northernmost flying club in the world has been founded at Malmberget, in the iron mining center of Swedish Lapland well above the Polar circle. Its organizer, Knut Liljedahl, has purchased two planes, one with dual controls.

The entire community has shown a great interest in the venture. Liljedahl and his associates intend to use the larger machine for passenger flights, to help finance instruction of amateur pilots.

released unless some sudden decision led to a desire to return them to Chicago. The same applied to Leo "Lee" Hart, who was arrested today when he attempted to communilate with Foster and the others as they were being transferred from the city to the county jail. Hart is a brother of Marvin Hart, one of the prisoners.

Foster showed little concern over the prospect of his return to the midwest city where he once was considered a big power in gangland.

"I'm just the goat he said" as he learned of the Chicago indictment. "You see, they have to have a goat, and I'm elected."

Killer Suspect

Later, the reputed right hand man of George "Bugs" Moran, Chicago beer baron, spoke briefly of the revolver used to kill the newspaperman.

"It might have been my gun," he admitted. "If it is the same gun I'm thinking of, it was taken from me by a Chicago policeman and never returned. I knew nothing about this Lingle shooting except what I have read in the papers."

Late today Mayor John C. Porter assigned a number of city investigators to aid the district attorney's office. This move, it was believed, resulted from evidence which indicated the gang might have been in Los Angeles to start a wholesale brewery ring for "Bugs" Moran.

MORE SUSPECTS HELD IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, July 2.—UP—Murder of Alfred Lingle, newspaper reporter three weeks ago, reverberated tonight from Los Angeles to Chicago, while police arrested more suspects and gangsters attempted desperately to stave off further questioning.

A grand jury here indicted Frank Foster, arrested in Los Angeles. Foster, well known Chicago hoodlum, was not suspected of the actual murder, but was indicted to make sure he would be returned here for questioning.

The debonair Foster, member of the George "Bugs" Moran gang, purchased the snub-nosed revolver with which Lingle was assassinated.

The midnight shooting affray in which enemies tried to kill Jake Zuta and three companions after they had been questioned by police in the Lingle murder case, brought suspension of a police lieutenant and suggestion by a judge that armored cars be used to bring gangsters safely to court.

Zuta, a Moran vice lord, Solly Vision, Art Bratz and Leona Bernstein were freed on bond last night. They refused to leave the detective bureau without police escort on the ground that they would never be able to cross the Loop alive. Lieut George Barker agreed to drive them in his auto down State street, Chicago's most brilliantly lighted thoroughfare.

When they reached State and Quincy streets a blue sedan containing three men drove up and opened fire, inadvertently killing a street car motorman and wounding a watchman and then escaped after firing a smoke bomb which filled the canyon of skyscrapers with a dense, black haze. The shots were heard over the clatter of telegraph machines in the United Press office, 11 stories above the scene of the shooting.

Police Commissioner John Alcock suspended Barker "pending investigation of the affair." Barker violated a recent strict ruling of Commissioner Alcock that police were not to have contact with any gangsters except to arrest them.

ANOTHER SUSPECT SOUGHT BY POLICE

LOS ANGELES, July 2.—UP—Another intensive but secretive police search was started tonight for a man believed to be closely identified with the killing of Alfred Lingle, Chicago newspaper reporter.

A squad of detectives in a police machine made a fast trip to another suspected "hideout" of the Frank Foster gang in the exclusive Wilshire district and ransacked the apartment for clues after entering the place with drawn revolvers, it was learned.

Although no one connected with the raid would talk, it was rumored that the affair was staged in hopes of capturing Red" Forsyth notorious member of the "Bugs" Moran gang of Chicago.

Co-operative Groups Do Big Business

GENEVA, July 2.—UP— Annual turnovers of anywhere from $6,000,000,000 to $50,000,000,000 are now being made by the combined co-operative organizations all over the world.

Statistics on the development of co-operatives have just been completed by the International Labor Bureau here.

They cover 728 international or national co-operatives in 48 different countries. The membership alone in these organizations is considerably over 75,000,000 of which some 35,000,000 are in the Soviet organizations alone.

The statistics show that in 1928 272 of the central cooperative organizations, other than banking and credit societies, had sales to their members of no less than $10,000,000,000.

Additional figures also show that the total turn-over of 33 co-operative banks in 1928 was over $50,000,000,000.

An equally good showing was made by the co-operative credit societies. Seventy-four central organizations of these show a turnover for 1928 of $18,500,000,000.

Evidently Byrd will keep on being a hero forever, nobody having thought of making him president.

Youth Kills Self After Beer Loss

EBREICHSDORF, Austria, July 2.—UP—George Kruez, a 21 year-old peasant of Ebreichsdorf went into the forest just back fo his father's house and hanged himself because at a local dance and general social get-together he played cards with a number of other peasant lads, lost 21 beers—beer being the stakes—found that he had money enough to pay for only 11, and was chagrined when a girl friend taunted him with being a pauper.

IT'S A PITY TO BE FAT!

When tempted to over-indulge

"Reach for a Lucky instead"

Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Avoid that future shadow* by avoiding over-indulgence, if you would maintain that modern, ever-youthful figure. "Reach for a Lucky instead."

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Lucky Strike has an extra, secret heating process. Everyone knows that heat purifies and so 20,679 physicians say that Luckies are less irritating to your throat.

Your Throat Protection—against irritation—against cough

*In his famous book entitled "Foods For the Fat," Dr. Yorke-Davies gives this advice: "Any system for reducing fat will be of no avail if the patient persists in eating between meals." We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky instead," you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.
